ABOUT THIS REPORT

How a Nova credit report works

Nova Credit is a premier cross-border credit bureau that provides you with instant access to high-quality global credit data in an easy, uniform format. The credit report you see is the compilation of credit file data from our international bureau partner.

Nova score description

The NovaScore was developed to help you understand how international credit report data translates into a U.S. context. The NovaScore above is generated by mapping the foreign credit score from our international bureau partner to a U.S.-equivalent score range based on underlying default odds tables. The credit score range utilized by Circulo de Credito in Mexico is 300 to 850. The remapped NovaScore is being provided solely by Nova and was not provided by Circulo de Credito.

Adverse action codes

G1: Lack of recent revolving account information
F7: Lack of recent loan information
E2: Number of consultations
K2: Time since most recent account opening is too short

CONSUMER RIGHTS

Inaccurate, negative information may lower your credit score and may indicate fraudulent activity. We recommend you dispute any inaccuracies as soon as you spot them. You can initiate a dispute with Nova Credit by downloading and mailing our Dispute Request Form available on our website at www.neednova.com/disputes.html. Please mail the Dispute Request Form, along with any supporting document(s), to: Nova Credit Inc., Attn: Consumer Disputes, 711 Market Street, San Francisco, CA 94103.

Because the underlying credit information in a Nova Credit Report is originally provided from a foreign credit bureau, you also have the option to submit a dispute directly with the relevant bureau. You can find contact information for our foreign credit bureau partners at www.neednova.com/bureaupartners.html.

For disputes filed with Nova Credit, we will initiate an investigation upon receipt of your request provided that we have your file on record. In most cases, we will need to contact the foreign credit bureau that originally provided the underlying data and may request further documentation from you during this process. We process all disputes within 30 days unless applicable law permits us more time. We will notify you when the results of your dispute investigation are ready, and will send you a copy of your updated report if any corrections were made. Please note any information that is verified as accurate will not be removed from your report.

A Summary of Your Rights Under the Fair Credit Reporting Act

The federal Fair Credit Reporting Act (FCRA) promotes the accuracy, fairness, and privacy of information in the files of consumer reporting agencies. There are many types of consumer reporting agencies, including credit bureaus and specialty agencies (such as agencies that sell information about check writing histories, medical records, and rental history records). Here is a summary of your major rights under the FCRA. For more information, including information about additional rights, go to www.consumerfinance.gov/learnmore or write to: Consumer Financial Protection Bureau, 1700 G Street N.W., Washington, DC 20552.

- You must be told if information in your file has been used against you. Anyone who uses a credit report or another type of consumer report to deny your application for credit, insurance, or employment – or to take another adverse action against you – must tell you, and must give you the name, address, and phone number of the agency that provided the information.
- You have the right to know what is in your file. You may request and obtain all the information about you in the files of a consumer reporting agency (your "file disclosure"). You will be required to provide proper identification, which may include your Social Security number. In many cases, the disclosure will be free. You are entitled to a free file disclosure if:
 - a person has taken adverse action against you because of information in your credit report;
 - you are the victim of identity theft and place a fraud alert in your file;
 - your file contains inaccurate information as a result of fraud;
 - you are on public assistance;
 - you are unemployed but expect to apply for employment within 60 days.

In addition, all consumers are entitled to one free disclosure every 12 months upon request from each nationwide credit bureau and from nationwide specialty consumer reporting agencies. See www.consumerfinance.gov/learnmore for additional information.

- You have the right to ask for a credit score. Credit scores are numerical summaries of your credit-worthiness based on information from credit bureaus. You may request a credit score from consumer reporting agencies that create scores or distribute scores used in residential real property loans, but you will have to pay for it. In some mortgage transactions, you will receive credit score information for free from the mortgage lender.
- You have the right to dispute incomplete or inaccurate information. If you identify information in your file that is incomplete or inaccurate, and report it to the consumer reporting agency, the agency must investigate unless your dispute is frivolous. See www.consumerfinance.gov/learnmore for an explanation of dispute procedures.
- Consumer reporting agencies must correct or delete inaccurate, incomplete, or unverifiable information. Inaccurate, incomplete, or unverifiable information must be removed or corrected, usually within 30 days. However, a consumer reporting agency may continue to report information it has verified as accurate.
- Consumer reporting agencies may not report outdated negative information. In most cases, a consumer reporting agency may not report negative information that is more than seven years old, or bankruptcies that are more than 10 years old.
- Access to your file is limited. A consumer reporting agency may provide information about you only to people with a valid need -- usually to consider an application with a creditor, insurer, employer, landlord, or other business. The FCRA specifies those with a valid need for access.
- You must give your consent for reports to be provided to employers. A consumer reporting agency may not give out information about you to your employer, or a potential employer, without your written consent given to the employer. Written consent generally is not required in the trucking industry. For more information, go to www.consumerfinance.gov/learnmore.

- You may limit "prescreened" offers of credit and insurance you get based on information in your credit report. Unsolicited "prescreened" offers for credit and insurance must include a toll-free phone number you can call if you choose to remove your name and address from the lists these offers are based on. You may opt out with the nationwide credit bureaus at 1-888-5-OPTOUT (1-888-567-8688).
- You may seek damages from violators. If a consumer reporting agency, or, in some cases, a user of consumer reports or a furnisher of information to a consumer reporting agency violates the FCRA, you may be able to sue in state or federal court.
- Identity theft victims and active duty military personnel have additional rights. For more information, visit www.consumerfinance.gov/learnmore.

States may enforce the FCRA, and many states have their own consumer reporting laws. In some cases, you may have more rights under state law. For more information, contact your state or local consumer protection agency or your state Attorney General. For information about your federal rights, contact:
